Three straight regular seasons winning the league. Three straight playoff exits. Still no rings. The data screams he should have 2 by now. Watch this card: either he finally gets one or we add 'Brower Curse' to the league lexicon.

Won 2024, slept through 2025 (.476). Now sitting on 1 R1, 2 R2s — enough capital to retool. History says he wakes up in odd years. Sneaky preseason pick.

15 years, 0 rings, -0.80 schedule luck (worst in league). Sitting on 2 R2s and 2 R4s — actually decent capital. If the universe stops hating him, this could be his year.

2023 champ. Quiet 2024 + 2025 but he's a top-4 drafter when you control for slot. If he wakes up at the draft table, he's a playoff threat. Holds standard 1 R1/R2 capital.

Won 2025 but mortgaged his future doing it. 0 R1s and 0 R2s for 2026 — Kyle gutted him in the W6 deadline trade. Still the most consistent floor in the league, but the ceiling just got capped.

15 years in, 0 rings. The most-traded manager in league history still chasing his white whale. Going into 2026 with standard capital and the league's deepest scar tissue. The story writes itself if he ever wins one.

Three R1s. THREE. Bought Trevor's championship and shipped him every garbage pick he owned. If his ceiling years align with his rookie draft, this is a coronation. If they don't, it's another 10th-place finish.

Bottom of every meaningful chart for years, but now sitting on 2 R1s after fleecing Tim. If you squint, there's a path. If you open your eyes, it's another double-digit-loss season.

J. Jennings108*R13·Y2*DEN*102*R9·Y1

Won as a rookie in 2022 and we've been waiting for round 2. Traded away his R1+R2 in 2025 to chase, ended up middling. Now picking late with no top-end capital. Bridge year.
